of moonshine whisky. DeSmet, according to the police hafed beneath the weight of worries incurred by his modest revende gleaned from his legitimate interment was in Long Beach ceme-

The arrest was the result of a raid Saturday afternoon by Police Chief De Jaeger and Detective Lebbert. DeSmet might have drawn a larger fine had he not promised so profusely to discontinue the illicit liquor traffic.

Gus Manzas of East Moline was held to the grand jury by Magistrate Gustafson on a charge of transporting liquor on a public highway. This action followed a long controversy on wine, disser-tated chiefly by Attorney Andrew Olson in behalf of the defendant.
Disagrees Over "Wine."

Manzas was arrested Dec. 8 after a quantity of alleged wine was discovered in his motor truck. A. E. Anderson, city chemist, testified that ne : "alyzed the liquor and that it centained 11 per cent found that it centained 12 per cent alcohol. Attorney Olson protested the liquor was not wine, was non-intoxicating and that the policeman who arrested Manzas could not qualify as a wine expert.

Churches and church were criticized sharply by the Methodist leader for their tendency toward temporary and emotional Berglund, Ivar Abrahamson, John revivalism, for their waste of time in church politics and their religious autocracy in the home.

"The only way the world will be saved is by formation, not reformation," explained the speaker in urging for the better kind of re-ligious instruction for 'the chil-dren, especially. "You may exe-cute a few criminals, jail a few and save a few by Billy Sunday revivals, but in a short time you will have just as large a crop of derelicts, and you have the same task to do over again."

The shortest way toward clean ing up any criminal institution or activity is by the process of preempting the field of childhood in the home, church and school, according to Dr. Boyard.
